ARB Introduces Simpson II Rooftop Tent

Seattle, May 1, ARB 4x4 Accessories. There is no need to fill your precious cargo space with tents, air mattresses and sleeping bags when you can carry an ARB Simpson II tent on the roof of your vehicle. Now you can have your bed already made and with the simple clamshell style design, your accommodation can be flipped open, ready for sleeping in minutes.

Easily stowed on your roof rack, the ARB Simpson II provides a hint of luxury no matter how remote your location. Furnished with a two and a half inch high-density foam mattress with removable cover, this tent offers paramount camping comfort. At just under eight feet in length, this tent provides plenty of space to sleep two people and store their gear on a larger than queen-size bed. With an open height a little over four feet, the tent's vaulted ceiling ensures ample headroom.

Manufactured from high quality poly-cotton, the Simpson II is waterproof, yet breathable and resistant to mold. An aluminum framed and clad base reduces weight and insulates against cold weather. A raised fly-sheet helps keep the tent cooler in the sun and reduces condensation in the cold, making it ideal lodgings in any weather. Supported awnings permit the windows to be opened during rain, and screens on the doors and windows will keep the insects at bay.

The tent is accessed by a short climb on the retractable, aluminum ladder. Designed with no sharp edges, the ladder rungs are made for use with bare feet.

An enhanced mounting system means there is no need to drill into your roof rack or bars, so the tent can be installed and easily removed when not in use. The tent folds down to a packed height of twelve inches to minimize wind resistance.
